Versatile Hatten leads Mervo

Standout, team face Anacostia in Academy

By Lem Satterfield

Marcus Hatten can do just about anything he wants to on the basketball court.

He can be clutch, as he was scoring 20 points in a 71-70 victory over Lake Clifton last season, se-curing the win after grabbing his eighth defensive rebound of the night with two seconds left and dribbling out of harm's way. Or he can be acrobatic, as he was in converting a crowd-pleas-ing dunk off an alley-oop pass in last season's Class 4A state semifinal loss to Oxon Hill.

nal loss to Oxon Hill.
"The key is for us to be in the game as a team, together, and if they need a lift, then I feel I can provide that lift." said Hatten, a 6-foot-2, 160-pound senior guard. "I like to try to take over a game and take the other team out of it early but at the same time get my team on the same page I'm on."

Nominate top athletes

The Baltimore Sun accepts nominations for its Athletes of the Week from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sundays at 410-332-6200 or 1-800-829-8000, Ext. 6200. One boy and one girl will be selected each week and featured in Wednesday's editions. Only coaches can nominate Athletes of the Week.

2 points in 2nd quarter

Bu JEFF SEIDEL SPECIAL TO THE SUN

John Carroll's shooting problems continued vesterday.

No. 6-ranked Mercy's defense suffocated the Patriots, allowing two field goals in one 14-minute stretch, and John Carroll scored only two points in the second quarter.

In fact, the Magic shut down the Patriots' offense throughout the Catholic League game, Jamie Vogtman scored 18 points, and Kaitie Schuyler added 17 as Mercy routed No. 13 John Carroll, 56-30. Mercy (13-4 overall, 4-0 league) beat John Carroll (6-7, 3-3) by only three when the two teams last met, but this time was much dif-

19-2 in the second quarter en route to a 37-14 halftime lead.

Vogtman and Schuyler both scored 12 points apiece in a first half that Mercy dominated. The Magic limited the Patriots to just one second-quarter basket.

Mercy scored the first 16 points of the quarter and blanked John Carroll until Megan Sparks' putback with just 2:02 left in the half. The Patriots then scored just one basket over the next eight minutes as Mercy rolled.

"We played good 'help' defense," said Vogtman, who also had 13 rebounds. "We stopped them from penetrating. They're quick, and they like to fast break a lot, but we were able to stop

Mercy repeatedly cut off John Carroll players as they tried to points, and Sparks scored sight drive, often double-teaming the
